

Guidепosts

WNC'S SPOT FOR TIMELY TIDBITS & NEWSY SNIPPETS

What's ReHappening?

Black Mountain College's spirit of creative collaboration lives on during an evening of dining and spontaneous art

DURING ITS 24-YEAR RUN, Black Mountain College developed a reputation for attracting and producing some of the 20th century's great artists, including painters Willem de Kooning and Josef Albers and composer John Cage. The school was an experiment in education that emphasized interdisciplinary collaboration over rigid academia. And no better was that spirit displayed than during the school's regular Happenings—gatherings when students, teachers, and visiting artists would share a meal and ideas, allowing art to happen naturally.

"This event is for everyone who shares in the creative spirit. The audience completes the circle."

—GENE FELICE II

» CONTINUED P.16

DÉJÀ VU Performances take place amid dinner guests during the ReHappening. Right, Sara Baird presented a butoh-style dance titled Lacuna at last year's event.

